 How My Home Lab Helped Me Land a Senior SRE Role

Last week, I accepted an offer for a Senior Site Reliability Engineer (SRE) role after a 3-round interview process — and I want to give major credit to the hands-on experience I gained through my KubeCraft home lab setup.

I got a job and won a CTF by writing Assembly

What a world to love tinkering. Just wanted to give a positive update and maybe a motivation to fellow students. Thanks to Mischa and the skeleton crew, and their advice and philosophy people at uni think

The best community I've ever been a part of, I've learned so much already and it's just the beginning. The best part is truly the people. (The classes are awesome but that goes without saying). Absolutely love this place.

Got a job after 3 months!

I'm happy to report that I've been offered a position as a kubernetes engineer! I'm looking forward to getting back into the workforce and keeping my skills current. Being out-of-work has been quite an experience and a time of self-reflection, but I'm feeling recharged and ready to go!

A new job

On the 1st of October I have started a new job for ITQ in the Netherlands. Really happy to announce it here because many things I embraced about a year ago contributed to this success of mine. KubeCraft
